Olympic boss to review riot

Former VANOC CEO John Furlong to co-chair independent examination with former Nova Scotia deputy attorney general
They say Vancouver police deployment figure is 'just a number'

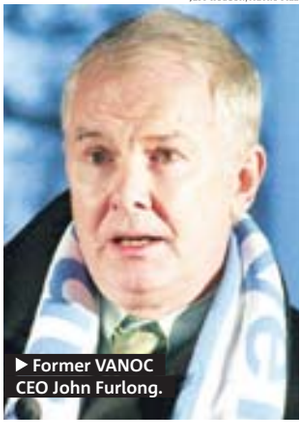
MATT KIELTYKA
@METRONEWS.CA

The face of the Vancouver 2010 Winter Olympics is now tasked with reviewing the Stanely Cup riot that tarnished the city's image — an image he helped build.

Former VANOC CEO John Furlong and former Nova Scotia deputy attorney general Doug Keefe were officially named co-chairs of the independent review of this month's riot. They are tasked with investigating the planning and operations of the province, the City of Vancouver and the Vancouver Police Department before and during the Game 7 riot.

"I think there are important questions circulating in the community and I think people want answers," Furlong told media yesterday. "The advantage I have here is I have good working knowledge of many of the agencies and partners."

JEFF HODSON/METRO FILE



▶ Former VANOC CEO John Furlong.

One of the biggest questions surrounding the riot is the level of police deployment on that night.

Vancouver police have refused to release operational details — even to Mayor Gregor Robertson — but Keefe is confident he'll have access to those plans.

Whether he chooses to release that information publicly is a different matter.

"There are very good reasons why the police do not give out operational details," said Keefe. "I would caution people not to get hung up on watching a number. The real question is the adequacy of the deployments."

Keefe said he is particularly interested in seeing how much of the advice after the 1994 riot was heeded in the planning for this year's Stanley Cup run.

The pair have until Aug. 31 to file their report, which will contain recommendations on preventing similar incidents in the future.

▶ Proposed Evergreen Line.

Evergreen Line to be back on track soon: Minister

The Evergreen Line will see the light of day soon.

It's a call that's been echoed for years, but Transportation Minister Blair Lekstrom renewed the promise yesterday after meeting with the region's mayors to discuss ways of scrounging up the funding needed to break ground on the $1.4-billion project.

Lekstrom wouldn't comment on the options on the table, but was confident TransLink's $400-million share would be committed soon.

"I thought it was probably one of the most productive meetings we've had," Lekstrom said. "I leave that meeting being optimistic that we're going to find a solution."

The minister wouldn't discuss what options are before the mayors, though increased property taxes and a fuel tax are among the ideas that have been floated publicly before.

Lekstrom said he recognizes the public's desire to finally sort out the Evergreen Line's future.

B.C. woman joins fight for right to die

BCCLA's litigation officer says there is now more evidence about the value of medically assisted dying ◐ Sue Rodriguez failed to overturn law in 1993

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

A 63-year-old B.C. woman suffering from Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis is taking up the torch Sue Rodriguez lit nearly two decades ago, asking the courts for the choice to die with dignity.

Gloria Taylor was diagnosed in 2009 with ALS, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease, a progressive and usually fatal disorder that attacks the nerves and muscles.

Taylor asked to be added as a plaintiff in the lawsuit filed by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association in April. The lawsuit challenges Canada's laws that make it a criminal offence to help seriously and incurably ill people die with dignity.

"It is my life, my body and it should be my choice," Taylor said yesterday.

Her family is 100 per cent behind her, Taylor added, and she's even talked to her 11-year-old granddaughter about it.

"I said, 'How do you feel about this?' And she says, 'Grammy, I don't want you to suffer.'"

Taylor said she wants to have the option to work with her doctor to minimize her pain and maximize the peacefulness of her death.

"I don't understand how the law allows me to commit suicide in any number of horrendous ways, and yet it is illegal for someone to help me to die at peace without pain in the comfort of my home with my families and friends surrounding me," she said.

B.C. driven up the wall, says survey

- Report shows road courtesy going downhill in the past five years
- ICBC urges people behind the wheel to be more respectful

JEFF HODSON/METRO FILE

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS

Drivers are increasingly misbehaving on B.C. roads with behaviour that could put others in danger and increase the risk of road rage, says a new survey.

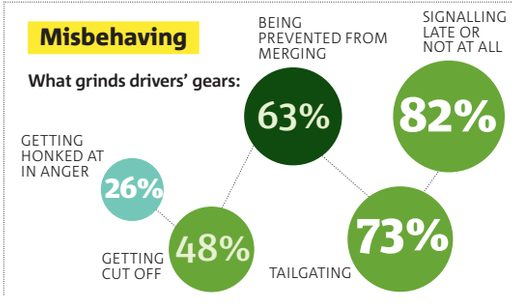
Ipsos Reid polled 899 adult drivers aged 18 and older on behalf of ICBC. Results show half of the people surveyed saying drivers in their community are less courteous on the road than they were five years ago.

The five most common aggravating behaviours were signalling late or not at all, tailgating, being prevented from merging, getting cut off and getting honked at in anger.

The survey also showed that when asked to grade themselves and other drivers, British Columbians gave other drivers in their community an average letter grade of C+ for road courtesy, while awarding themselves a B+.

"There's a clear disconnect between how drivers perceive their own driving behaviours and the reality of their driving," said John Vavrik, a psychologist at ICBC, in a statement.

Studies have shown that lack of courtesy, Vavrik added, can be one of the major causes of road rage and can likely impair a person who might otherwise make smart driving decisions.



ICBC spokesperson Adam Grossman said people should try to avoid being aggressive and not take their frustration after a bad day behind the wheel.

"Driving smart requires a cool head," he said.

Hells Angels among those charged in death

Two Hells Angels are among seven people charged in the beating death of a Kelowna man who was trying to protect his sons, police say.

RCMP Supt. Pat Fogerty said yesterday that 51-year-old Dain Phillips' savage murder was sparked by a feud between two families.

Fogerty said Phillips' sons were in a dispute with two brothers associated with Hells Angels member Norman Robert Cocks.

Cocks, 31, is charged with second-degree murder, along with his father Robert Charles Cocks, Robert Leonard Thomas, David Joseph McRae, Matthew Thomas McRae, Anson Lloyd Schell and Thomas Allen Vaughn.

Police say Thomas, 46, is also a member of the Hells Angels in Kelowna, and that 52-year-old Robert Charles Cocks is president of the Throttle Lockers, a Hells Angels support club.

Police have said Phillips did not provoke the attack or assault anyone, but that a man in the group hit him at least once with a baseball bat and that he died just hours later of head injuries.

A statement from the RCMP said Phillips was attacked near his home and died in hospital with his wife and family at his side.

Study shows tax inequality

The unpopularity of the HST is the least of B.C.'s taxation problems, according to a new study that claims that the province's highest-earning households are paying a lower overall tax rate than middle- and lower-income earners.

The study, prepared by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives, asserts that income tax cuts over the past 10 years have disproportionately benefited high-income earners, and that regressive taxes such as sales tax are disproportionately burdening middle- and lower-income brackets.

B.C. Place reno extends below the roof

Permanent roof area

The steel and glass semi-circle indicates where the permanent part of the roof, which will always cover the stadium seats, is set to end. The roof won't be opened or closed during events, but the permanent area will keep spectators dry even if it begins to rain midway through an event.

"It will be a very comfortable building in the summer, so we're expecting you'll see a lot more concerts and a lot more shows in the summer months."

DAVID PODMORE, B.C. PAVILION CORP. CHAIRMAN

Central fixture

This central fixture is where the roof will be stored when retracted. The first quarter of the material has already been installed. A new four-sided electronic video board will hang from the fixture. The retractable roof is double-layered and pressurized, allowing it to create a rainproof seal.

Surface

The old floor of the stadium has been uprooted and will be completely replaced by the time the stadium re-opens. The new surface will be covered in an all-weather turf, and the stadium will also have a custom floor cover for concerts and exhibitions.

$563M

The total budget of the renovation is $563 million, including a $277-million provincial grant and a $150-million loan. B.C. Pavilion Corp. chair David Podmore and Minister of Jobs, Tourism, and Innovation Pat Bell assert that the project is on budget and they expect it to remain so.

Seating

All the old blue seats have been removed and recycled, and installation of replacements is in its early stages. The new seats are red, slightly wider than the old ones, and will be padded in some areas of the stadium. The finished stadium will have a capacity of 54,000.

Battle after Kabul hotel bombing

Four massive explosions rocked the hotel Violence up in Kabul since killing of Osama bin Laden

NATO helicopters fired rockets at gunmen on the rooftop of a besieged Kabul hotel early yesterday, ending a more than four-hour standoff between militants and police that left at least seven dead and eight others wounded, Afghan officials said.

Interior Ministry spokesman Sediq Sediqqi said six suicide bombers attacked the Intercontinental Hotel frequented by Afghan officials and foreign visitors. He said two were killed by hotel guards at the beginning of the attack and four others either blew themselves up or were killed in the airstrike or by Afghan security forces.

The Taliban claimed responsibility for the rare, nighttime attack in the capital — an apparent attempt to show that they remain potent despite heavy pressure from coalition and Afghan security forces.

The attackers were heavily armed with machine-guns, anti-aircraft weapons, rocket-propelled grenades, hand grenades and grenade launchers, the Afghan officials said. Afghan police rushed to the scene and firefights broke out. They battled for hours with gunmen who were positioned on the roof. Some Afghan provincial officials were among the 60 to 70 guests staying at the hotel.

15-year-old drove van that struck officer

A Toronto-area police officer was dragged 300 metres to his death yesterday by the 15-year-old driver of a minivan, which had been pulled over on a rural highway, police say.

York Regional Police Chief Eric Jolliffe says Const. Garrett Styles stopped a van carrying four young people at about 5 a.m. in the town of East Gwillimbury, north of Toronto.

The 32-year-old officer was at the driver's door when the van accelerated, dragging him nearly a third of a kilometre before rolling over and pinning Styles, Jolliffe said.

Firefighters were able to free the officer from the vehicle but he died about an hour later in hospital.

"A tragedy for us, his family and the community," Jolliffe said.

Pope tweets for first time

Pope Benedict XVI yesterday tweeted for the first time, announcing the launch of a Vatican news information portal.

Benedict's tweet read: "Dear Friends, I just launched News.va Praised be our Lord Jesus Christ! With my prayers and blessings, Benedictus XVI."

The portal news.va for the first time aggregates information from the Vatican's various print, online, radio and television media. It's the latest effort by the Vatican to bring its evangelizing message to a greater, Internet-savvy audience and follows forays into Facebook, Twitter and YouTube.

Ex-sex king turns to politics

Thai tycoon vows one-man anti-corruption reality check on government

As the super-pimp who once ran Thailand's biggest brothel empire and then exposed the police kickbacks he had to pay for it to flourish, Chuvit Kamolvisit feels uniquely qualified to lead the country's fight against corruption.

And in his quest to win a parliament seat in elections Sunday, the 49-year-old one-time massage-parlour king is betting a public tired of divisive, hypocritical leaders will agree.

Politicians "are like diapers — you have to change them," Chuvit said in an interview, referring to a campaign poster that features him cradling a toddler. "Otherwise it's too dirty."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prostitution is illegal in Thailand but rarely prosecuted. Chuvit's massage parlours were thinly disguised brothels, and he doesn't see anything wrong with them — except the payoffs police demanded.

'The street truth'

- With the air and swagger of a mafia don, the mustachioed Chuvit Kamolvisit plays the part of former sex boss well. Since selling off his brothels, he has become a kind of pimp-turned-Robin Hood — exploiting his own sordid past to legitimize his crusade against graft.
- It all began in 2003, when he was accused of the unauthorized, overnight demolition of scores of unlicensed bars and shops from a downtown Bangkok block he owned. The brutal move erupted into a major public scandal, and when the police failed to protect him, Chuvit fought back by exposing the behemoth bribes he had to pay to keep his mighty empire of flesh running.
- Eight years on, he said, corruption is still "eating this country and nobody cares." He admits there's not much he can do about it, but whoever listens will "hear the truth ... the street truth."

Last shuttle flies July 8

The last space shuttle launch ever is set for July 8.

NASA managers met at the Kennedy Space Center yesterday and confirmed Friday, July 8, as the launch date for Atlantis. The 12-day mission will close out the 30-year shuttle program.

Atlantis will fly to the International Space Station with a year's worth of supplies. Four astronauts will be on board for this grand finale.

NASA spent the past week testing a new fuel valve that was installed in one of Atlantis's main engines to stop a leak. Officials say everything looks good.

Launch time is 11:26 a.m. ET.

LETTERS FLOOD TV WATCHDOG

Interview sparks outrage

A Canadian broadcast watchdog says it has received a record-setting number of complaints from viewers about a recent Sun News TV interview.

Canadian Broadcast Standards Council national chairman Ron Cohen says his organization has received more than 4,100 complaints about a June 1 interview between host Krista Erickson and Quebec-born dancer Margie Gillis.

"It's the most individual complaints we've received about a single incident."

During the interview in question, Erickson quizzed Gillis about whether it was appropriate that she receive government grants to support her dance work.

Federal funding for arts groups not a sure thing, minister says

Federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty has a warning for cultural institutions that have come to rely on regular government funding: Don't count on it.

Flaherty delivered the message yesterday shortly after announcing $500,000 in support for this year's Canada Walk of Fame Festival, to be held in Toronto.

On Monday, Summer-Works, an acclaimed Toronto indie theatre festival, announced it had lost its federal funding.

But Flaherty says arts organizations should not set their budgets assuming they'll get government funds.

"There's lots of competition, lots of other festivals, and there are new ideas that come along."

Google faces new competition lawsuit

French search engine accuses Google of 'blacklisting' its sites, depriving it of revenue

Google faces a new legal challenge in Europe after French Internet company 1plusV filed a $411-million lawsuit yesterday saying the search-engine giant unfairly squeezed out competitors in France.

The suit comes soon after the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, following the lead of European regulators, started investigating claims that Google has abused its dominance of Internet searching and advertising to stifle competition.

1plusV, which is based in Versailles, operates more than 30 specialty search engines in French. The company says it became impossible for users to find its sites via Google searches, and claims that Google did this intentionally. This kind of "blacklisting" deprived the 1plusV sites of users and advertising revenue, the company argues.

1plusV is one of several companies that have complained to the European Commission about Google's practices.

What's with women's shoes?

Women everywhere are squeezing their feet into what can only be described as bondage booties and wobbling across the intersection of Toronto's Bloor and Yonge or Vancouver's Robson and Thurlow with a determined gait reminiscent of Mistress Paddywhack.

Apparently, the small cadre of sadists (masochists?) who rule the fashion world have determined that bondage chic has replaced heroin chic, and now otherwise sane females look as if their feet have been captured by aliens.

Wherever I look, women's shoes have morphed into something Darth Vader would wear if he were into cross-dressing. ("I am your motha, Luke.") Even the fashion blogs have trouble describing them: "Nine West collections this autumn/winter are truly something many will lack words to describe."

You've got that right unless you're willing to come clean and admit that bondage is the basis for this bold design trend. One blog, written by the superbly named Tania Braukämper, takes the wraps off the whole sordid affair: "Like so many other things that were only recently considered too sexually charged to see the light of day, in a few short years the leather harness has infiltrated the realms of what we consider fashionable."

"Wherever I look, women's shoes have morphed into something Darth Vader would wear if he were into cross-dressing."

Wait a minute. Did she say leather harness? Yes, she did, and her post is accompanied by a photo of a young woman in various states of extreme bondage to match her shoes. She appears to be 17 feet tall on account of her 12-foot spike heels.

According to Braukämper, when bondage and fetish fashion first hit our trend radars back in 2009 (so long ago) it was all bodycon, leather, studs and chains. "But it's progressed. It's moved on." To leather harnesses. How long will it be before any self-respecting personal assistant won't be caught dead on the subway without her whip? Accessorize!

Maybe I'm making too much of this, but after watching these poor, trussed-up wretches wobble across the street, I feel compelled to speak out: Women of the world unite! You have nothing to lose but your bodycon, leather, studs and chains (not to mention your harnesses)! Strike a blow for sensible shoes!

I remember a generation of women who fought for equal rights and equal pay, for control over their own bodies and their own place in the sun. But did the struggle include the right to orthopedic surgery? I guess so.

Meanwhile, I wonder what Ms. Fashionista sees when she gets dressed to go to work in her bondage kit? Probably only a secret code that says I buy all my shoes in New York/Paris/London. And you don't.

Worth mentioning

BEIJING. China has counted its 1.34 billion people; now it's the pandas' turn.

After conducting a census of its human population last year, China is about to start a once-a-decade count of giant pandas in the wild.

The official China Daily reported more than 60 trackers were trained at Wanglang National Reserve in the southwestern province of Sichuan, which is believed to have the largest number of wild pandas in China.

They will collect droppings for DNA analysis, which will allow zoologists to track individual pandas and accurately estimate the population, Chen Youping, director of the reserve's administrative bureau, was quoted as saying by Xinhua News Agency.

The census is also expected to reveal more on living conditions, age structure and changes of habitat of the endangered species.

The last census counted 1,596 wild pandas in China, 1,206 of which were living in Sichuan.

Wild pandas are threatened by a loss of habitat, poaching and for being poor breeders.

What rhymes with red light, green light?

A rapper is awaiting word on whether he will face charges after staging a performance in New York City's Times Square from atop a traffic light pole.

The spectacle stopped traffic for hours at the end of the morning rush hour while police negotiated with the man.

Onlookers clicked photos and cheered. Police set up a cushion under the pole for fear he would jump.

MARY ALTAFFER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man agreed to come down on a police ladder. He was taken to a hospital for evaluation.

Witnesses say the man was trying to hand out his own CDs in a store but was kicked out. That's when he climbed the pole.

5 set-in-Canada movies

Whether it's Maritimers taking on Toronto or a bush pilot fighting for survival in Nunavut, these films take Cancon to a whole new level

IN FOCUS

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This Canada Day it's possible to sight see without leaving the comfort of your home.

Many American films use Canada as a substitute for international locations — look for Casa Loma in the X-Men films, or Simon Fraser University in The Day the Earth Stood Still for example — but our homegrown cinema highlights our landmarks as our own.

So why not reheat some tourtière (with a side of poutine of course!), or crack open a bag of ketchup chips, then wash it down with a glass of Niagara Peninsula ice wine and see the country through the eyes of our filmmakers.

Goin' Down the Road (1970)

The story of Pete (Doug McGrath) and his pal Joey (Paul Bradley), two Maritimers who set out in a Chevy to find a better life in Toronto, (SCTV joked they were looking for "lawyerin' and doctorin' jobs") is a Canadian time capsule circa 1970.

One Week (2008)

The story of a dying man on a road trip is a love letter to Canada, showcasing landmarks — like the world's biggest hockey stick — but its heartfelt story should appeal to everyone, whether they have the Queen on their money or someone else's mug.

Jesus of Montreal (1989)

Not only does Saint Joseph's Oratory represent Montreal in the game Monopoly: Here and New: The World Edition, it also provides a beautiful; backdrop for this classic Canadian film from acclaimed director Denys Arcand.

waydowntown (2000)

This satire of office life and urban living showcases Calgary's underground web of connecting tunnels.

You don't see much of the above ground life, but it gives you a glimpse of a little seen aspect of Albertan big city life.

The Snow Walker (2003)

Shot partially in Rankin Inlet, Nunavut, the story of a bush pilot and a sick Inuit woman who must survive after a plane crash features a breathtaking look at Canada's North, including some beautiful time lapse photography of that natural wonder known as the Northern Lights.

Giving a Voice to gay singers

NBC's hit singing competition The Voice embracing gays Two gay singers appear in Top 4 for show final

NBC's hit show The Voice is giving a voice to gay singers.

The singing competition wraps its first season this week with four contestants battling for the championship. Two of those finalists are gay.

Other TV talent shows such as American Idol and America's Got Talent have featured gay performers but not in an open way. For example, Adam Lambert, who won second place on American Idol in 2009, didn't address his sexuality until after the competition ended.

He's had success as an openly gay performer, earning a Grammy nomination, a gold-selling CD and a pair of Top 40 hits.

But the presence of gay singers on The Voice is fresh for prime-time TV, and the singers are making a splash at a time when New York State has legalized gay marriage.

"It couldn't have come at a better time, could it?" said Beverly McClellan, a 41-year-old gravelly voiced singer from Virginia and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., whose partner has appeared backstage on the show with her.

McClellan is working with Christina Aguilera on The Voice.

Vicci Martinez, a 26-year-old energetic singer from Tacoma, Wash., is also gay and has Cee Lo Green as her mentor.

"Everybody is just evaluated based on their talent and their voice, and that has no boundaries and no boxes to put anybody in," said Audrey Morrissey, one of the show's executive producers.

Aguilera, Green, Blake Shelton and Adam Levine serve as coaches on the show.

The four chose teams of eight after an audition process that allowed them only to hear the singer's voice but not to see them in person.

Teams were whittled down to one contestant for each coach in the finals.

The winning singer gets a record contract with Universal Republic Records and a $100,000 prize.

Another case of life imitating Hollywood art?

Myanmar deports actress Michelle Yeoh, who stars as pro-democracy leader in upcoming movie, The Lady

The military-backed government of Myanmar has deported Hollywood actress Michelle Yeoh, who stars as pro-democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi in an upcoming movie, officials said yesterday.

The Malaysian actress arrived in the country's main city, Yangon, on June 22 and was deported the same day because she was on a blacklist, a government official said.

The official, who declined to be identified because he was not authorized to speak to the press, did not say why Yeoh was on the list.

But Myanmar's repressive government has routinely rejected visa requests of journalists and perceived critics for years.

Suu Kyi spokesman Nyan Win confirmed Yeoh was deported but had no other details.

The Luc Besson movie about Suu Kyi's life, The Lady, is due out later this year, and Yeoh has said she hopes her portrayal of Suu Kyi will raise awareness about the Nobel Peace Prize winner's story.

Suu Kyi, 66, spent most of the last two decades detained by the former military junta. She was released last year, just days after an election that her party boycotted and in which she was barred from being a candidate.

The vote was the nation's first in 20 years, and in March, the junta handed power to a civilian government.

But critics say little has changed and the new government is merely a front for continued rule by the army, which has been in power in that country since 1962.

Yeoh visited Myanmar in December and spent time with Suu Kyi for the movie, which was filmed in neighbouring Thailand.

Movie reviews

Transformers: Dark of the Moon
Genre: Action/Adventure/Sci-Fi
Director: Michael Bay
Stars: Shia LaBeouf, Rosie Huntington-Whiteley and Tyrese Gibson

Set three years after the last Transformers movie Sam Witwicky (Shia LaBeouf) has an Ivy League education under his belt and a new girl on his arm.

A new job for a multinational company places Sam, once again, smack dab in the middle of a showdown between the nasty Decepticons and the heroic Autobots. .

Director Michael Bay has never been known for his restraint and in the past his overblown ascetic has gotten in the way of his storytelling.

This time out he reigns in the story and carefully choreographs the battle scenes so the clashing robots are no longer just blurs of glinting metal but clearly defined warriors.

By amping up the action and playing down the story Bay shifts into third gear and delivers the best Transformers yet. RICHARD CROUSE

LaBeouf struggles with a public image

Transformers star admits it's not always easy being in the spotlight glare

Shia LaBeouf admits he doesn't have the best public image in Hollywood, but he just can't help being himself, the Transformers star tells Details magazine.

"I would like to be George Clooney — diplomatic. I just don't have the wherewithal yet or the inner serenity," he says.

"My bulls— meter is tuned very sensitive. The minute it starts kicking up, I get back to truth, and sometimes that involves, you know, 'I don't want to take a picture.' And if that's the case, am I an a-hole for being honest? Or am I an a—hole for being dishonest, smiling in your picture and I f—king hate being there? Which one is worse? These are the questions I ask myself that George Clooney doesn't ask."

Transformers 3, which will be available in 3-D, is being released in theatres today. The first two were some of the highest grossing films.

Sheen character to be killed

It looks like Charlie Sheen and Two and a Half Men are done for good, as the show's writers are planning to kill Sheen's character off to prevent him from ever returning to the show, according to TMZ.

While the script hasn't been finalized, sources say one option involves Sheen's character driving his car off of a cliff. Meanwhile, sources close to Sheen tell Radar Online that the actor has signed a deal with TBS for a new sitcom in which he will play a character "very similar to the one he played on Two And a Half Men."

TBS has denied the reports of a deal, despite Sheen claiming the two were 'deep in negotiations.'

The latest confusing twist to the Sheen saga has led some to speculate that Sheen might be back on one of his drug benders that captured headlines earlier this year.

Getting Wilde with Gyllenhaal

PLAYING HOUSE? Olivia Wilde has caught the eye of another of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors. The House star was reportedly acting very "touch-feely" with Jake Gyllenhaal during a recent night out at the Chateau Marmont, sources tell People magazine.

"At one point, he had his hand on hers," a source says. "Olivia was very cool and wasn't fawning over Jake but seemed to like the attention he was giving her."

Aniston dishing out the advice

RELATIONSHIP COLUMN? With so much attention on her love life, it's no surprise Jennifer Aniston also gets asked a lot for relationship advice — and she's now happy to oblige, apparently.

"You need to talk to each other and you have to say what you want. You don't confront your man about things which you're not happy about, you approach it in a much more constructive way," she tells new! magazine. "You never want to be in an adversarial situation where it's you versus him. All couples face those kinds of difficulties, but you've got to be able to talk about your problems and your needs and do it in a positive way. That's easier said than done, of course."

Honouring Canada's athletes

Canada's Sports Hall of Fame opens July 1 in Calgary • Features hundreds of pieces of sports memorabilia from a Formula One race car to Terry Fox's iconic running shoe

Shadow-boxing with Lennox Lewis, wheelchair-racing against Chantal Petitclerc and re-living Jacques Villeneuve's championship Formula One season are just some of the interactive attractions at Canada's new Sports Hall of Fame.

Canada's sports shrine opens Friday in Calgary for a few hours for a free public preview before its official opening Saturday.

Once located on Toronto's Exhibition grounds, the Hall only existed online and in boxes in recent years as a search was conducted for a new home.

The 4,085-square-metre building houses a 120-seat theatre, 50 interactive displays and more than 1,000 artifacts. From the outside, part of the building looks like a tilted red Lego block.

Eleven galleries open onto, and are connected to, a central main hall, which has a statue of Wayne Gretzky stationed at its entrance. The main hall also features a photo-wall of honoured members.

There's an intimate feeling to the space, despite its size. Given the Hall's proximity to the new Athletic and Ice Complex under construction at COP and all the national teams training there, the interior was designed to feel like a sports clubhouse.

"Sport has always needed a place to come together," said the Hall's CEO Claire Buffone-Blair. "We feel Canada's Sports Hall of Fame can be that clubhouse for Canadian sport."

Permanent statues in the Hall include Gretzky, diver Sylvie Bernier, figure skater Barbara Ann Scott, curler Sandra Schmirler, runner Philip Edwards, Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer and cross-country skiing pioneer Herman (Jackrabbit) Smith-Johannsen, who lived to 111.

"Sport has always needed a place to come together. We feel Canada's Sports Hall of Fame can be that clubhouse for Canadian sport."
CLAIRE BUFFONE-BLAIR, CEO

Alex Baumann's two Olympic gold medals in swimming had rarely been out of his safe until they were put under glass in the hall. Baumann says while the medals were locked away, his children saw them only once.

"I always had duplicates to travel with because I didn't want to lose them. I never pulled them out ... It's much better to be displayed here."

Michelle Cameron's Olympic gold medal in synchronized swimming — she and Carolyn Waldo won the duet in 1988 — is there along with one of her swimsuits.

"It does give me goose bumps seeing it here," Cameron said. "It's a little bit emotional actually. To have it here among the greatest athletes Canada has seen, it's pretty cool for it to be in a home like this."

Former Crazy Canuck Ken Read noted how beat up his ski helmet looked in a display that included his boots and gloves.

"It kind of shows a little bit of age because it's nearly 30-plus years old," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Home of the Hall

- Calgary beat out nine other cities to become home to the Hall, which was paid for by the federal government ($15 million), provincial government ($10 million) and the City of Calgary ($5 million). The Sports Hall of Fame is in the process of raising $20 million privately for its operational expenses.
- Founded in 1955, the Hall once shared space with the Hockey Hall of Fame at Toronto's Exhibition grounds. But it went through a turbulent time after the federal government cancelled plans to move it to Ottawa nearly 12 years ago.
- The Hall of Fame was demolished to make way for BMO Field in 2006 and the exhibits were kept in storage.

Benefit from a personal brand

STUDENT VOICE

CHIRS DIONNE
TALENTEGG.CA

SUBMITTED

Chris Dionne

Pursuing a post-graduate education was always in the cards for me. I knew I needed more than your average BA in today's competitive job market.

What I didn't know, however, was how important it was to craft a personal brand as part of the job hunt.

When I graduated from York University, I had a single internship under my belt. I was working on search engine optimization and social media at a Toronto museum, receiving credits for a fourth year course. I'd like to think I was hired based on my experience as a cast member at Walt Disney World, making dreams come true and practicing great customer service.

On graduation day, with my degree in hand, I was offered a summer internship at Canada Helps, a dynamic charitable foundation based in Toronto. This time I'd like to think I was hired for my SEO and social media savvy, highlighting the skills I had developed at the museum.

Now I was beginning to connect the dots in my career path. I understood the importance of leveraging the value of past work experiences to receive new opportunities. My experience with the Walt Disney Company got me the job at the museum, which led to my job at the charitable foundation.

Unfortunately, this still left me without a full-time job.

I persevered and enrolled in the public relations post-graduate program at Humber College, renowned for its reputation and connections in the PR industry. I also adopted an online image, learned the importance of crafting my personal brand, and began to connect with online influencers.

After attending Humber, I realized schools should place greater importance on helping students craft their own brand, developing a unique voice online. Connecting on LinkedIn, engaging on Twitter and blogging about relevant content provides students an opportunity to get their name out there, and increases their chances at gaining employment.

My advice for fellow students and recent grads is to start creating your own brand. Upload a visual resumé on SlideShare, create an About.me profile or launch your own website if you're feeling ambitious.

With the right tools, launching your personal brand will get you noticed among other job applicants. Leverage the power of storytelling and reap the benefits.

TALENTEGG.CA, CANADA'S ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADS, WANTS TO HEAR YOUR STUDENT VOICE. SHARE IT AT TALENTEGG.CA.

What I learned

Key take-aways from Chris' experience:

- Leverage skills from past work experiences when searching for new opportunities.
- Take advantage of social media platforms, including Twitter and LinkedIn, to build your online personal brand. In doing so, you can share your story with the online community, build a following that values your content and get noticed by employers.
- Show your passion for the industry you want to work in by blogging on relevant or newsworthy topics.

A hole in one

When golfing with the boss, always behave like a pro

ISTOCK

▶ The key to a great golf game with the big guy is some advance planning.

Many professionals will be asked to join their boss and clients for a round of golf this summer, and whether you play like a champion or rarely lift a club here are some tips about how to act on the course from Steve Stradiotto, a brewing specialist at Molson Coors and creator of Molson Canadian 67 Sublime, and CPGA professional Conor O'Shea.

Prepare for the round like it is a meeting Call the pro shop ahead of time to confirm the dress code. If you need to rent clubs make sure they have some available. If you know your boss and clients are inclined to indulge at the 19th hole then plan ahead and offer to be the designated driver.

The warm-up Always visit the driving range. Start with some simple chipping and half swing shots; you'll establish a reliable tempo, warm up gradually and connect well with the ball.

Skip the shop talk Don't start talking about work unless your boss does. He/she might want to know you a little better, learn about your favourite band, sports team or local pub.

Great putting is about speed control Focus on getting the ball to slow down as it nears the hole. The slower the ball is rolling the more likely it will be to fall in. A good rule is to take the putter back and through the same distance, one inch for every foot on a flat putt.

Beating your boss? If it comes down to the last hole and you're tied - Make the putt. And if you do sink it, you should buy the first round of beer.

One good round deserves another In Canada, having a beer on the course is often part of the experience. If your foursome wants to enjoy a round during the round, stick to a light beer and help keep your drive straight and your game in control.

A POCKET GUIDE TO WORKPLACE PRIVACY

ISTOCK

▶ Peeved at the big cheese? Don't post it on the internet. Employers have grounds to reprimand employees based on social media posts.

WORKPLACE LAW

DANIEL LUBLIN
DAN@CANADAEMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM
TWITTER: @DANLUBLIN

As the boundaries between employees' personal and work lives become increasingly blurred, we receive more and more questions about the boundaries of privacy in the workplace. Consider this your cheat sheet on some of the more commonly asked questions at work:

Medical information
Does your employer have a "right" to your entire medical history when you request a medical leave? The answer is no. An employer has a right to know when you will return and what accommodation, if any, you require.

Facebook and Twitter
Once you post information online, it is no longer private. Consider whether comments you make at the workplace would merit discipline. If so, the fact those comments are virtual makes no difference. Also, beware of the status update. In one recent case where an employee took time off to mourn the death of a friend but then posted that he was "in the City and ready to party," his employer fired him for dishonesty. Can you blame them?

References
I am often asked whether it is "legal" for a former employer to provide a negative reference. Generally, the answer is yes. As long as an opinion is honestly provided, the individual providing it cannot be successfully sued, even if you disagree with what was said. Further, when you provide the name of a reference to a prospective employer, you implicitly provide permission to contact him or her.

Surveillance
There is generally no "right" to privacy in the workplace, although there are exceptions. Surveillance evidence, for example, can only be used if there is a reasonable basis to justify it, such as employee theft, and after appropriate warnings. In a recent Ontario case, the court found that a hidden camera secretly installed in a manager's office had no basis to be there and awarded an employee severance even though she had resigned.

Workplace computers
While there is no right to privacy in personal information held in employer's computers, an appellate court recently concluded that information within personal computers used for work does not belong to your employer. Although the distinction seems subtle, this ruling could extend to personal BlackBerrys and cellphones, meaning that whoever owns the device owns all of the contents, regardless of what it is used for.

Chip off the old block

Gordie Howe's son Mark called to Hockey Hall of Fame ◐ Belfour, third-winningest goalie in NHL, lone 2011 inductee to get in on first ballot

Mark Howe didn't have to live up to the lofty standard set by his father Gordie in order to earn a spot alongside him in the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The younger Howe played much of his career in the shadow of his famous father, but found out yesterday that it was worthy of hockey's highest honour. He'll be enshrined in the hall alongside Ed Belfour, Joe Nieuwendyk and Doug Gilmour on Nov. 14.

"To get the phone call today kind of took my breath away," said Howe. "I don't consider myself in the class of players as the Gordie Howes and the Wayne Gretzkys and the Bobby Orrs, but to be mentioned in a class (like this one) means the world to me."

Howe was just 18 when he began his pro career as a forward for Houston in the World Hockey Association. It was a chance for the most famous family in hockey — at the time — to all wear the same sweater.

Howe eventually moved on to the NHL when the Hartford Whalers were absorbed in 1979. Playing as a defenceman, he scored at least 15 goals on eight occasions and amassed 742 points over 16 NHL seasons.

The call from the hall was a long time coming for Howe, who had been eligible since 1998. Gilmour had been passed over every year since 2006, while Nieuwendyk missed out last June. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No Burns this year

- The 18-member selection committee decided not to elect someone in the builder's category for the first time since 1981.
- So it will be at least another year before former Maple Leafs coach Pat Burns is officially enshrined.
- There has been a strong push for the three-time Jack Adams Award winner, who died of cancer in November at age 58.

Ehrhoff's rights traded to Isles

Christian Ehrhoff's days with the Vancouver Canucks are over.

The club announced yesterday that the rights to the defenceman have been traded to the New York Islanders for a fourth-round draft pick in 2012.

Ehrhoff is set to become an unrestricted free agent on Friday, the start of the free-agency period. The Islanders will have exclusive negotiation rights with the veteran German until then.

Ehrhoff made $3.1 million US last season.

The move comes hours after the Canucks signed top defenceman Kevin Bieksa to a five-year, $23-million contract extension.

Many believed Bieksa could have fetched much more on the open market.

Ehrhoff was a solid contributor to the Canucks' first-overall finish in the 2010-11 regular season, putting up 50 points (14 goals, 36 assists) and a plus-19 rating in 79 games.

His numbers dipped in the playoffs, where he had 12 points in 23 games and a minus-13 rating.

He was limited to one point in Vancouver's Stanley Cup final loss to Boston, and was on the ice for two of the Bruins' four goals in the deciding game.

He said after the final that he had been playing with an injured shoulder. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Engine

The Versa will bring fuel economy to the forefront with a brand new 109-horsepower 1.6-litre four-cylinder engine. The powerplant replaces both the previous 107-horsepower 1.6, as well as the 122-horsepower 1.8-litre I4.

A five-speed manual gearbox carries over as before, while a continuously variable transmission (CVT) replaces the antiquated four-speed automatic that was offered on the previous 1.6- and 1.8-litre Versa.

Nice price

Nissan likes to brag about the Versa S base price that will likely be about $14,000 (including destination charges). That would make it one of the least expensive cars on the road.

Even the tiny Smart for two model lists at more than $500 above the Versa. The S offers just the basics, other than an adjustable steering wheel, however you'll have to use window cranks for raising and lowering the side glass and to unlock the front doors you're stuck with a key.

Trunk space

There's now slightly increased trunk space, giving the Versa the edge over the next-size-up Sentra in the stowage department.

The new Versa's all-new platform weighs about 70 kilograms less than the previous architecture. That should drop the overall weight below the 1,140-kilogram threshold, although the automaker hasn't yet divulged the final number.

▶ New architecture that's lighter, a new engine and transmission and improved fuel economy, all for an estimated starting price in the $14,000 range, including destination charges.

Versa offers big space for a small price

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

The versatile Versa has hit its stride as the kind of car that even big and tall folks can ride in without having to be bent, folded or pretzeled.

It's an approach that in the past five years has garnered a devoted following for Nissan's little runabout and should continue when the next-generation model makes its debut this summer.

Small cars are currently the hot ticket to ride, due mainly to ever-pricier trips to the fuel pump.

But just because the package is small doesn't mean your entourage/carpool compatriots have to endure tortuously cramped quarters. Small-car buyers these days have big expectations and automakers such as Nissan aim to deliver.

The all-new Versa sedan (a hatchback edition will likely arrive by the end of the year) maintains similar proportions to the 2011 model. That translates into nearly the same amount of passenger space including, Nissan claims, more rear legroom than a BMW 5-series or a Mercedes-Benz E-Class sedan.

Where price is the whole point, the Versa is easily one of the more sensible and practical automobiles you can buy, along with being the most accommodating for both a wide and tall variety of passengers.

Plenty of horses in Lincoln luxury sedan

Zephyr/MKZ offer average reliability and seem free of serious issues

SECOND GEAR

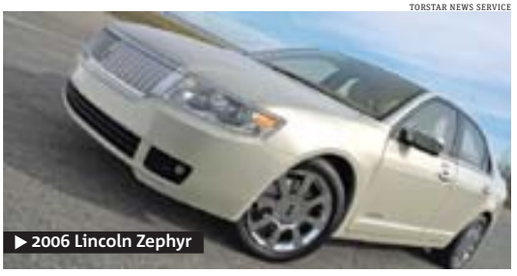
JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Debuted in 2005, Lincoln's new-age entry-level model was called the Zephyr for a single year before being rebadged as the MKZ.

With available AWD and standard V6 power, this Fusion-based sedan was aimed at other entry-luxury machinery like the Hyundai Azera and Cadillac CTS.

For 2006, a 3.0-litre, 221-horsepower V6 was standard with an automatic six-speed transmission and front-wheel drive. The following year, engineers specified a larger 3.5-litre V6 with 263 horsepower. All wheel drive became an option, too.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE



▶ 2006 Lincoln Zephyr

What Owners Like

Many owners report a quiet and very comfortable ride and plenty of performance. Styling, interior looks and interior appointments also tend to be highly rated. Praise for overall value and the THX audio system round out the package.

What Owners Dislike

Owners of earlier models tend to complain about cheaper than expected interior parts and the potential durability thereof.

A large turning circle, wind noise at speed, and blind spots were also fairly common gripes. Finally, some folks wished for more sporty and planted handling.

Common Issues

Inspect the MKZ's interior and exterior for signs of wear and tear. Some owners complain of "thin" sheetmetal that dents easily, as well as peeling or worn chrome trim on certain cosmetic parts.

Make double sure the air conditioning system works properly, and check for proper operation of all interior electronics and lights. Be sure the seat heaters and coolers (if equipped) work properly, too.

A Ford/Lincoln mechanic should check beneath the vehicle for signs of wear and fluid leakage as well.

Note that AWD-equipped models may suffer from leaky transfer cases.

If that's the case on the model you're considering, have the seller get the issue fixed before agreeing to purchase. An improper bolt in the power steering system could cause a fluid leak, too.

Finally, check the ceiling liner and footwell carpeting for signs of moisture that could be caused by a sunroof leak.

The Verdict

A Ford mechanic will be familiar with the common problems, service bulletins and recalls, as well as diagnosis and repair.

Ultimately, the MKZ's lower-than-average resale values, average reliability and higher-than-average feature content for the money will make it an attractive buy for many.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Someone dear to you feels rather left out. Aim to reassure him or her.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You need to socialize more with people who share your outlook on life.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Don't listen to those who say you are being too pushy because you are not being pushy enough.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 The grass may look greener on the other side of the fence, but you must finish what you started before trying something new.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Get out and make sure everyone knows who you are and what you can do.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 It may not be true that everyone is out to get rich at your expense but you should act as if it is.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You will very soon reach a point where you have to slow down or risk collapse. Your health comes first — always.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Just because something sounds right, does not make it right. Be skeptical even if it grabs your attention.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Focus on what you are good at and don't be tempted to do things merely to impress other people.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You'll be overwhelmed by the number of people who want your help.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Make sure you get plenty of rest — your brain needs it as much as your body. If you don't, you'll regret it.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Think before acting then think again just to be on the safe side.
